- No classes. Earn college credits by completing real world projects online that teach you skills you need to know to succeed professionally; 89% of students say their College for America work helps build skills for their current job.
- Your degree, your time. Schedule your online academic work on your own time. You can take as little or as long as you need for any project and advance quickly through subjects you already know.
- $3,000 per year. No textbook fees or other added costs.
- A respected college degree. Once you complete the program, you will graduate with a degree from Southern New Hampshire University, a nonprofit university founded in 1932.

Degree options include associate and bachelor's degrees in fields like management, communications, healthcare, and general studies.

Keep in mind that payment plans and federal financial aid is available for consumers and employees who qualify. Also, GSIL has created a comprehensive education, computer and technology resource guide for people with disabilities.

It is our sincere desire to help those consumers and employees who would like to continue their education. If you have questions or would like more information, please contact Maureen Whittemore at 603-410-6512 or email mwhittemore@gsil.org.
